

Giving Day Manager

Giving Day Manager, Charidy

- Guide not for profits around Australia to Giving Day success
- Work in a dynamic, flexible and progressive workplace
- Apply your fundraising skills in a variety of non profits
- Full time or part time role available

About the role

Reporting to the Managing Director, the Campaign Manager is responsible for guiding non profits through the award winning Charidy Giving Days. Working with everything from small community groups to schools to Australia's largest non profits, your skills in managing projects and juggling competing priorities will be honed in this fast paced and rewarding role.

Learn to deliver the signature Charidy Giving Day, and manage, encourage and upskill teams as they work towards their own Giving Day. Develop close connections throughout the nonprofit sector at all levels from junior to executive. Work closely with the sales team at Charidy to deliver value to clients across Australia, and become skilled at the world-leading technology that underpins it all.

About you

- Strong background in project management or similar
- Experience in fundraising highly desired
- High emotional intelligence and excellent interpersonal and communication skills with the ability to build and maintain effective relationships across teams and cultures
- Exceptional organisational and management skills with the ability to identify and implement ideas
- Experience working closely with a sales team

What's in it for you?

Apply your skills in a high-growth and fast paced environment. Work in a dynamic, flexible and progressive workplace that is committed to giving you the opportunities you deserve. Take advantage of the employee benefits on offer, including flexible work practices, up to 12 additional days off per year on top of 4 weeks of annual leave, and a young and vibrant team.

About us

Charidy arrived on Australian shores in 2016 and are best known for our award winning Giving Days. Born and raised in New York City, we are a vibrant technology based fundraising company who have raised nearly $1 billion for non profits since our inception. You will be joining a small team that is energetic and motivated - we deeply enjoy the work that we do and the impact it has in the community.
